BATTLE WITHIN PAN-AMERICAN NEUTRAL ZONE IS ANTICIPATED

Units Blockaded at Martinique, Including Only Aircraft Carrier, is Expecting Ultimatum and Intervention at Any Moment; Reported Cut Off From Outside Communication; London Claims "Successful" Action Against 35,000-ton Warship Richelieu, But Location and Details of Fight Are Not Disclosed

MEASURE GRANTING FULL POWER TO PETAIN'S GOVERNMENT ADOPTED BY DEPUTIES 395 TO 3

The battleship Richelieu, 35,000-ton pride of the French navy, has been crippled by British naval and air action, a cheering House of Commons was informed today as another section of France's fleet was taken by the British.

While A. V. Alexander, first lord of the admiralty, told the house of the British raids on the Richelieu at Dakar, French West Africa, yesterday, announcement was made in Alexandria, Egypt, that the French would turn their entire fleet there over to Great Britain.

The Richelieu was struck first by depth bombs from a motorboat under her stern to wreck her propeller and steering gear, but the coup de grace on the new, mighty dreadnaught was delivered by aerial torpedoes dropped by British planes, Alexander disclosed.

He said she is down by the stern, listing heavily to port and lying in a heavy pool of oil.

The blow disposed of the seventh French battleship, the admiralty first lord said, leaving only the Jean Bart, a sister ship of the Richelieu, still so far from completion that she cannot be ready for action for months.

France had eight capital ships when the armistice was signed, he declared, accounting for them thus: Three in British control, one sunk, one badly damaged and immobilized, one driven ashore at Oran and incapacitated for months if not permanently, one which escaped to the French naval base at Toulon after being hit by a torpedo, and the Jean Bart.

The decision of French naval authorities to turn over the French fleet at Alexandria leaves the British free to seek out the Italian navy in the Mediterranean for the "future engagement" promised by Prime Minister Winston Churchill last week.

It came at a time, too, when reported German movements hinted at a Nazi attempt to wrest Britain's control over the Mediterranean stronghold of Gibraltar.

A naval battle within the Pan-American neutrality zone was forecast today in dispatches from Vichy, French government seat, declaring French fleet units blockaded at Martinique expected British warships to attack "at any moment."

Martinique is a French-owned island in the Caribbean Sea, 200 miles northeast of the Venezuela coast. It is about 1,200 miles south-east of Miami, Fla.

French navy ministry sources said the beleaguered carrier included France's only aircraft carrier, the 22,146-ton Bearn, the 6,496-ton training cruiser Jeanne D'Arc, several submarines and smaller fighting ships.

A group of U. S. navy destroyers was previously reported en route to the Martinique area to act as observers of any sea clash which might violate the neutrality zone.

Presumably, under orders of the Petain government which last week directed all French warships to "fight their way home" if necessary, the French ships at Martinique will give battle against any British attack.

France's entry into the ranks of totalitarian states, under the domination of German conquest, appeared certain today when the French chamber of deputies approved, 395 to 3, a bill granting full powers to Premier Marshal Henri Philippe Petain's government to write a new constitution.

TWO BOYS DROWN IN THE MONONGAHELA

Pittsburgh, July 9.—(P)—The murky Monongahela river claimed the lives of two nine-year old boys in separate water accidents yesterday.

A leaky canoe in which four boys were paddling at Charlevoix returned, throwing them overboard. The youngest, John Grip, drowned, despite efforts of the others to save him.

James Doak drowned while swimming with two other boys at Asport. Alfred Tachior, 11, grabbed James' arm, but let go when he went below the surface.

Details of German-Italian Agreement For Threefold Attack on Britain Are Revealed

Rome, July 9.—(P)—An Italian-German agreement for a three-fold attack on Britain was reported today by Virginia Gayda, usually authoritative Fascist editor.

The Axis partners, Gayda said, determined:

1. To blockade the British Isles.

2. To break Britain's Empire contacts.

3. To defeat her "at home, in imperial territories" and at sea.

Each Axis power has definitely signed tasks for these goals, Gayda, editor of Il Giornale Italia, said.

Italy's job, he said, is to strike the British at four places on the Atlantic, Mediterranean, Indian and Arctic oceans and above all, immobilize a large part of Britain's seapower in the Mediterranean.

On land, Gayda said, Italy is assigned to strike at Egypt from Cyrenaica, in Libya, at the British-Egyptian Sudan from East Africa, at Kenya and at British Somaliland.

Telephone Company Upheld in an Appeal Involving Its Service

Harrisburg, July 9.—(P)—The Public Utility Commission today ordered the Bell Telephone Company to deny service to any applicant using its wires to transmit race track information for gambling purposes.

The commission split along non-political lines in its vote.

Beamish said the decision will "decide many other cases" in which the applicants have sought telephone service to bring in race track information. The commission acted under a state law prohibiting dissemination of race track information for gambling purposes.

The telephone companies contended they could not deny service to any applicant and should not be required to inquire into the (Turn to Page Nine)

TOKYO PREPARES DRASTIC ACTION AGAINST BRITISH

Tokyo, July 9.—(P)—Informed quarters said today Japan is prepared to take military action against the British Crown Colony of Hongkong if Great Britain continues refusal to close the Burma route of aid to China.

These sources said Japanese plans are complete, and merely await London's reply to a request for reconsideration of the refusal.

They pointed to the removal of women and children from Hongkong as an indication of the seriousness with which Britain views the situation.

Neutral diplomatic quarters, expressing belief that Japan was not "bluffing," looked upon the Burma road affair as a test for Japan's official desire to assume and consolidate control over European-owned territories in eastern Asia.

The Japanese War, Navy and Foreign Ministries called emergency conferences to discuss British rejection yesterday of Japan's demand that this link between the Chinese Nationalist forces and the outside world be cut off—as a means of ending the three-year-old Chinese-Japanese war.

Pittsburgh, July 9.—(P)—Thomas D. Malone, 66, who as policeman and legislator worked for establishment of the police pension fund, died yesterday. Malone won his first term in 1909. SKY CLEAR FOR ALL-STAR GAME

St. Louis, July 9.—(P)—Early arrivals at Sportsman's Park today for the eighth annual major league all-star baseball game tricked out their bleacher seats under a bright sky and with indications the mercury would climb into the nineties.

Bleacher tickets were put on sale at 8:30 a. m. (ACST) and the fans immediately began pouring through the gates.

Manager Joe Cronin still retained his Yankee saturated lineup as official despite various complaints of neglecting the stars of other American League teams.

Bill McKee, boss of the Nationals who will be seeking their third victory, remained in doubt as to his starting pitcher, with either Big Paul Derringer and slender Bucky Walters in line for the honor.

Both are mainstays of his own

CONGRESS PREPARES TO RECESS

Senator Barkley, Democratic Leader, Expresses Hope That Approval Of Henry L. Stimson to Be War Secretary, and Frank Knox, for Secretary of Navy, Will Be Out Of Way By Nightfall; Expansion Bill to be Considered

WOODRING TO DELIVER RADIO TALK TONIGHT

Washington, July 9.—(P)—Amid charges that the administration was setting up a war cabinet, the senate leadership sought today to obtain quick approval of President Roosevelt's Republican appointees to defense cabinet posts.

Even opponents conceded that the two nominees—Henry L. Stimson to be secretary of war and Frank Knox to be secretary of the navy—would be confirmed, but debate was lasting longer than expected.

Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the Democratic leader, expressed hope that both appointments would be out of the way by nightfall so that the senate could pass the $4,000,000,000 navy expansion bill before Congress recesses on Thursday night for the Democratic national convention.

Senator Clark (D-Mo) asked for time to oppose the Stimson and Knox appointments on the ground that they were both "interventionists" and Barkley said he would speak briefly in behalf of confirmation.

In yesterday's debate, critics contended that the nominations were a step on the road to war. On the other hand Chairman Sheppard (D-Texas) of the military committee hailed them as a sign of national unity at a time of great emergency.

Senator Vandenberg (D-Mich) contended that Stimson had advocated policies which he said "immediately threatened to bring this war to the United States and fling us into it." (Both opponents have favored aid to the Allies.)

"If we are going into the war, which God forbid," Vandenberg said, "let it be by the deliberate judgment of the whole Congress" (Turn to Page Nine)

HUNGARIANS GO TO BERLIN FOR A CONFERENCE

Budapest, July 9.—(P)—Hungary's government leaders were called to Berlin today to discuss settlement of their country's claims on Rumania with the German and Italian foreign ministers, Joachim von Ribbentrop and Count Galeazzo Ciano.

Hungarian Premier Count Pal Teleky and Foreign Minister Count Istvan Csaky were expected also to confer with Adolf Hitler during their visit.

It was learned that a Hungarian note was sent to Germany several days ago setting forth Hungary's minimum demands for return from Rumania of Transylvania.

Von Ribbentrop and Ciano, who conferred with Hitler in Berlin Sunday and are scheduled to see him again this week, were said to have been studying the note and the Hungarian ministers were expected to discuss the whole question with them.

Hungary, it is understood here, is willing to settle peacefully with Rumania for less than the original borders of Transylvania, lost to Rumania in the World War settlement.

It is believed here Hitler and Ciano already know how far Rumania can be persuaded to make further adjustments.

Rumania has ceded Bessarabia and northern Bucovina to Soviet Russia.)

There has been no indication, however, that Rumania is ready to yield Transylvania and mobilization there is as complete as in Hungary.

CHICAGO STARTS GETTING READY FOR CONVENTION

Chicago, July 9.—(P)—Speculation over President Roosevelt's third term intentions increased today among early arrivals for the Democratic national convention which opens Monday, as they awaited the coming of Postmaster General James A. Farley, who knows the big secret but won't tell.

At Chicago stadium workmen were completing construction of the speakers' platform, press sections and other facilities for the political convalescence. The huge indoor arena was the scene of President Roosevelt's nomination in 1932.

Headquarters were opened in Loop hotels by supporters of Vice President John N. Garner of Texas, and Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana. Both groups insisted their choice for the nomination had an excellent chance, provided Mr. Roosevelt doesn't run.

E. B. Germany of Dallas, Tex., co-chairman of the Garner-for-president committee, reiterated his belief that President Roosevelt (Turn to Page Nine)

New Giant Air Stratoliners Set Records On Transcontinental Flights East and West

Both Inaugurate TWA Coast-to-Coast Passenger Trips at High Levels With Planes Carrying Pressure-Equalizing Equipment

TRAVEL 20,080 FEET UP

New York, July 9.—(P)—A giant, new air transport, called a Stratoliner, roared into La Guardia field at 9:29 a. m. (EST) today to set a new west-east transcontinental record for commercial planes.

It had taken off from Burbank field, Los Angeles, at 9:15 p. m. (EST) last night and stopped briefly at Kansas City on its flight through the so-called stratosphere—an altitude of about 20,000 feet. It was an hour and 11 minutes ahead of schedule.

The 4-motored Boeing, a 23-ton, $450,000 craft, spanned the continent in the elapsed time of 12 hours 14 minutes; the former eastbound transport record was 15 hours 4 minutes.

A sister ship reached Los Angeles from New York at 10:42 a. m., Eastern Standard time, today, in the elapsed time of 14 hours, 9 minutes, also a new westbound record.

Both inaugurated TWA coast-to-coast passenger flights at the new high level, the planes being designed with pressure-equalizing equipment to enable them to fly up to 20,050 feet without discomfort to passengers.

The eastbound ship carried 15 passengers and a crew of six headed by Jack Zimmerman, chief pilot of TWA's eastern division. Counting out the 33 minutes it spent at Kansas City, it was in the air 11 hours 41 minutes for an average speed of 223 miles an hour for the 2,608-mile flight.

Captain Zimmerman said only 60 percent of the power of the four 625-horsepower motors was used most of the time and that the top speed on the trip was 248 miles an hour over Illinois and Indiana.

Gillette Hints at Nomination Probe

Washington, July 9.—(P)—Chairman Gillette (D-Iowa) announced today that "several requests" had been received by the Senate campaign expenditures committee for an investigation of "the alleged high pressure telegrams campaign in behalf of Wendell L. Willkie."

The chairman of the committee directed to police this year's presidential and senatorial elections said he would "lay the complaints before the committee in a few days for such decision as they direct."

The complaints, Gillette said, were that delegates to the Republican national convention, which nominated Willkie, were urged by telegrams urging support of the utilities leader.

Gillette said he could not disclose sources of the complaint, but that there were several, both oral and written.

"The committee has been and will continue to be very careful to prevent the use of its machinery for either smearing candidates or white washing candidates," the chairman said. "We are glad to make investigations within the purview of our authority on matters which are of public interest to the voters or might indicate the need of remedial legislation."

MEXICO FEARS MORE TROUBLE

Mexico City, July 9.—(P)—Repetition of disturbances in which at least 44 persons were killed and 286 wounded during Sunday's presidential elections was expected today by political circles to accompany the official vote tabulation Thursday.

In an effort to forestall trouble the government began mobilizing the nation's military and police forces.

Both General Manuel Avila Camacho, administration candidate, and his independent opponent, General Juan Andreu Almazan, continued to claim the election, but the outcome remained in doubt.

Camacho's official Mexican revolutionary party, however, was completing its own tabulation, and

HAMILTON EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

Whether Drive to Cut the Lifelines of Enemy Empire is Prelude to Direct Attack Upon England Remains Matter of Conjecture

RECORDS EXCEEDED

BULLETIN
London, July 9.—(P)—Reuters, British news agency, quoted Japanese reports from Singapore today that the British had seized the 43,450-ton French liner Ile De France.

By The Associated Press

Berlin, July 9.—(P)—A new, intensive campaign to destroy British merchant shipping has been launched by German naval and air forces and may be expected to continue indefinitely, informed Nazi sources indicated today.

Opening of the drive was acclaimed by the authoritative German newspaper Die Welt, which said 330,000 registered tons of merchant shipping flying the British flag or bound for Britain were destroyed in the last eight days, exceeding all previous figures for any entire month since outbreak of the war.

(The British Admiralty announced six merchant ships, totalling 20,377 gross tons, had been lost by enemy action in the week ended June 30.)

The weekly rate of destruction of merchant shipping claimed by Die Welt exceeds that for the month of April, 1917, when Germany's unrestricted submarine warfare reached its peak by sinking 852,900 tons of British, Allied and neutral shipping.

Whether the drive to cut the lifelines of enemy empire is a prelude to direct attack upon England remains a matter of conjecture.

Asked about how his recent opponents for the Republican presidential nomination had treated him after he won from them, Willkie answered:

"I've talked with Taft, Vandenberg and Dewey and they have all been perfectly swell."

Willkie also announced that Governor Harold E. Stassen, of Minnesota, who was keynoter and Willkie's floor manager at the Republican convention, "would head a large campaign advisory committee."

Other appointments included formal selection of Russell Davenport of New York, former managing editor (Turn to Page Nine)

DODGE ESTATE CONTEST CLOSED

Pontiac, Mich., July 9.—(P)—The two-year litigation over the automotive fortune left by young Daniel G. Dodge was at an end today, and only legal formalities separated his widow, 22-year-old Annie Laurie Dodge, from the $2,500,000 which is to be her share.

Mrs. Dodge, who was a switchboard operator in Zore Bay, Ont. before her marriage, will receive that sum under a settlement approved yesterday in Oakland county court.

Mrs. Dodge was widowed after only 13 days of married life in August, 1933. Dodge, injured in a dynamite explosion at his Manitoulin Island lodge in Georgian Bay during the honeymoon, fell from a motorboat and drowned while being taken to a mainland hospital.

The young widow contested Dodge's will, which left her only $250,000 provided in a pre-nuptial agreement and the lodge on Manitoulin Island.

Paris, July 9.—(P)—by radio A Vichy, France, dispatch broadcast by the German radio today quoted Albert Chichery, French minister of food, as saying "France will be obligated to introduce food rationing" in order to protect food reserves.

Celebration Committee Officers Discuss Plans for Raising Fund to Meet Deficit

An informal meeting of officers of the Citizens' Fourth of July Celebration committee was held last evening when a partial report of the treasurer was considered.

It revealed, according to Chairman Ed Lowrey, that the committee is facing a deficit of approximately $250, due to circumstances that were entirely beyond the control of the committee, and could not have been anticipated.

Ways and means for raising the money to meet the deficit were discussed at length and a plan suggested by local merchants, whereby awards that were offered in the treasure hunt last Friday and Saturday, which were not claimed, have been made available for distribution through the committee, was accepted.

It was explained that the merchants were anxious to have the prizes given away, and as a result within the next few days the plan to be adopted by the committee to dispose of them will be worked out and made public.

Merchandise to the value of approximately $180 will be given away by twenty-six merchants whose treasure hunt prizes were not claimed.

The committee is justified in feeling confident that any plan that can be worked out to raise the required amount to pay off approved and supported.

A meeting of the general committee has been arranged for next Monday evening, the time and place to be announced later.

The treasurer requests that all persons having bills outstanding against the committee submit them at once.

QUAINT CUSTOMS

Recent dispatches from abroad have directed attention to quaint customs—such as England's old school ties and Oak Apple days. Perhaps many Americans remarked: "How silly."

W. J. Conway, Associated Press feature writer, suggests a look at some of our strange practices.

Each Labor Day approximately 91.2 per cent of our males toss their straw hats to the winds. We bow, bareheaded, to tradition. The weather makes no difference.

Every 4th of July brings an eruption of explosives and a plethora of hospital patients. The National Safety Council reports that 4,044 died in winning our independence and that 4,290 died in celebrating it with fireworks in the 1900-1930 period alone.

April 1 always finds thousands of memoranda on office desks. They read something like this: "Mr.
Abernathy, please call Mr. Wolf at such-and-such a number." That turns out to be a zoo. Mr. A. doesn't think it is funny. Neither does the wolf. But it's the thing to do.

We tear down fences on Hallowe'en. We tear up goal posts after big games. We tear the corners off two dollar bills.

Thousands of normally temperate people give whoopie the works on New Year's eve. The next day, while the rest of the world enjoys life, they hold aching heads and moan: "Throw that hour glass out. The roar of the sand is driving me crazy."

A hole in the earth has its unique usages, too.
Each Ground Hog Day groups of solemn men gather about them without fail. And it could be estimated —but never has—that 17,000,000 potential man-hours of work are wasted annually by those who peer down at steam shovels in excavation.

Movie premieres surrounded by search-lighted ceremonies form the rule now. Similar fanfare attends the grand openings of Hollywood delicatessens.

We hear unintelligible "sis-boom-bah" utterances in football stadia. We tie old shoes to honeymoon cars. We gravely notify our presidential candidates of their nominations hours or weeks after they, and everybody else, know who was chosen.

Probably most inexplicable is the seventh inning stretch at the ball yards. Nobody seems to know the exact reason. If it is to restore circulation, why don't we flex our muscles in the middle of the games? If it is to bring good fortune to the home team, why don't the supporters of the Athletics, Senators and Bees, for example, remain on their feet from start to finish?

And why, if it will change their luck, don't the followers of the Phillies stand on their heads?

THANKS

Kane Republican: Localities who were in Warren for the Independence Day celebration brought back glowing accounts of the neighboring borough's observance, terming it one of the finest ever held in northwestern Pennsylvania. 40,000 watched the parade, which took an hour and one-half to pass the grandstand, and the elaborate fireworks display in the evening attracted another record throng.

The esteem in which Mrs. Marian L. Gross, unfortunate victim of a fall at North Warren Monday, is held among students whom she taught at school there, is reflected in the large number of young people who have called at the home to extend condolences. The untimely passing of Mrs. Gross has cast a pall of gloom throughout the community, where she was loved and respected by old and young alike.

Reminders of the Independence Day celebration are disappearing rapidly. The Pennsylvania avenue bleachers are being returned to Kane, whence they were rented, and the band stand in Crescent Park disappeared yesterday.

Drop a card or letter to the boys at the Y. M. C. A. camp at Brocton, N. Y. There's nothing like getting a letter from home.

Some people are so pessimistic they think they are having a run of hard luck if they encounter a second red light in succession.

ANTI-TRUST ACTION ROLLING—DESPITE CONTRARY RUMORS

Washington, July 9—Despite a strong crop of rumors, there is as yet no sign the administration will relax the anti-trust laws to speed up production of goods for the defense program.

On the contrary, a federal grand jury in New York is just starting a broad investigation into the production of some items most vital to the army and navy program.

The rumors come mostly from a feeling that industries in the defense program may have to form combinations which might later be prosecuted under the anti-trust laws. The famous Madison oil case is cited: there the oil men claimed they were only doing what the government had urged them to do under NRA. It is beginning to be argued in some quarters that the anti-trust laws operate as a "business deterrent" for all defense production.

So far no administration pressure has been put on Attorney General Jackson or Assistant Attorney General Arnold, who heads the anti-trust division. Arnold some weeks ago defined the division's stand: national defense needs are paramount, and there'll be no anti-trust prosecution for any combination which either the War or Navy Department state in advance is necessary to meet those needs. To date, neither department has filed any such statement.

To which you might add that no group which is unable to get such a declaration from army or navy chiefs is likely to get any favors from the anti-trust division. Arnold is going right ahead; he won't pull his punches, and he won't resign. If the administration decides to restore the NRA system unofficially, it will have to fire him...and in an election year it isn't likely to do anything of the kind.

Meanwhile, despite a shortage of funds, the anti-trust division is going ahead with plans for a broad investigation into food distribution costs. It has preliminary inquiries under way in New York, Chicago and Philadelphia, and if Arnold can solve the problem of lack of personnel he hopes to put on a show as spectacular and far-reaching as his famous building costs investigation.

His chief handicap right now is the espionage and fifth "column" scare. He had been getting important help from agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation; lately, however, J. Edgar Hoover has had to call most of his G-men back and put them onto anti-spy work. Result is that the anti-trust division is woefully short-handed. Its New York food cost study, for instance, is currently being carried on by two men.

Arnold maintains that unless food costs can be brought down the nation is likely to find itself on something resembling a "German diet" before long. He talks of "breaking the log jam between the farm and the table," and wants a grand jury study of all of the restraints between farmer and consumer.

The farmer's share of the consumer's dollar, he asserts, has dropped from 50 per cent to 30 per cent. Milk for which the farmer gets from 3 to 5 cents a quart, he says, may cost the consumer from 12 to 14 cents; the consumer's dollar's worth of potatoes may have brought the farmer only 30 cents, his dollar's worth of fruit may have netted the farmer a quarter, and the meat for which he pays 30 or 40 cents a pound may have meant but 5 or 6 cents a pound to the farmer.

FORMER WARREN MAN RETIRED AS
R. CONDUCTOR

Word has been received here that J. H. (Red) Jennings, of El Paso, Texas, a former Warren resident and annual visitor here, has retired after 34 years service as a railroad conductor.

Concerning his retirement, the Tucumcari News-Mirror recently printed the following article:

After a long and faithful service of thirty-four years as a railroad conductor, J. H. (Red) Jennings has retired from service to join the growing local group of gentlemen of leisure.

Mr. Jennings, one of the old Link and Pin railroaders, started out as a switchman with the El Paso Railway of Chicago, in January, 1891. He was employed as conductor on the Kansas City, Pittsburgh and Gulf (now the Kansas City Southern); he served as a conductor on the Choctaw, Oklahoma and Gulf (now the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific) and also the Louisville, Evansville and St. Louis Railway (now the Southern Railway). He also saw service as conductor on the St. Louis and San Francisco Railroad, the Fort Smith and Western, the Arkansas and Choctaw Railroad (now the St. Louis and San Francisco), the Chicago and Rock Island R. R., the St. Louis Kansas City and Colorado, now the St. Louis Division of the Chicago and Rock Island.

Mr. Jennings first came to Tucumcari with the Rock Island in 1902, but left the small village to return in 1906, accepting employment with the E. P. and S. W. on the Dawson line, and since that time has continued through and since the merger of the old E. P. and S. W. with the Southern Pacific Company, until his official retirement May 15th 1940.

For many years Mr. Jennings and his family made Tucumcari their home, residing in the house now owned by Mrs. L. Bliz. Upon his taking the passenger run in 1920, the Jennings moved to El Paso where they have resided until his retirement.

Mr. Jennings who has been serving as conductor on the Golden State Limited and Californian between here and El Paso has made the Hotel Randle his headquarters when in the city between runs.

Known as one of the best passenger conductors in the Southwest, the company will miss the faithful and courteous service always given by Red Jennings.

But the railroad's loss is Tucumcari's gain for Red and his wife are planning to make the old home town their permanent residence, and Red will devote his time to fishing and baseball. Mr. Jennings is an ardent ball fan and holds an annual pass to all American baseball League grounds through the courtesy of the American baseball League.

Mr. and Mrs. Jennings have one son, James, who recently graduated from Notre Dame. Admitted to the New Mexico Bar, James is at present practicing law in Roswell.

U. S. D. A. Publications Comprise
"Six-Inch Shelf" For Vacationists

Whether the vacationist is "roughing it" in a wilderness forest area, or just eating supper in the backyard, the U. S. Department of Agriculture has a "six-inch shelf" that will help to get the best out of a vacation or picnic.

Of some 32,000,000 persons who each year visit the national forests, supervised by the Department of Agriculture, about 11,000,000 use the camp and picnic grounds. People travel on foot, on horseback, by auto, and by bus, in national forests in 40 states, Alaska, and Puerto Rico. The Forest Service, with aid from the Civilian Conservation Corps, has established about 4,000 camp and picnic grounds, says "Forest Outings," a recent publication (75 cents paper, $1.25 buckram, from the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D. C.). "Forest Outings" tells about trips through the

Chapter 12
On The Beach

SATURDAY morning we could not ride for some reason described to me simply as "inspection." I did not question it too closely. I put in the extra time at my typewriter, expecting Julia and half dreading a repetition of Friday's painful encounter. But she did not arrive until eleven o'clock, and then she did not come in, just sat in the car outside my window and honked.

I dropped what I was doing and went out to her, thankful enough for a respite.

"Come for a drive," she begged, so I got in beside her.

The car was a Chrysler convertible coupe. She drove it wide open and burning the wind. My hair would be in a thousand snarls, but I did not protest, knowing that she was running away from the thought of Jeff.

"This is Mimi's car," she said presently. "Dan gave it to her when we first came here. I can usually have it in the daytime. Mimi's moody. Dan goes out two or three nights a week to some stag affair. He takes her car and drives for hours by herself."

"Do you think she's happy?" I ventured.

"Who is?"

She uttered a mirthless laugh. "Which reminds me, we're revelling tonight—beach party. You're invited. Hope it proves better than last night's fray, which was a bore. Oh, and wait till you see what we got. It just happened in to see its friend Sandra, and it's too cute for words."

I saw what she meant that night. It was a man. A dark, thickset man with a little mustache and a stagey sort of good looks. He bowed over my hand and murmured "Chawmed."

Then he threw back his bathrobe to display his trunk-clad form and swelled a hairy chest.

We were all visibly impressed. Julia clasped her hands and gazed at him with starry eyes. Adam let his jaw sag in unpleasant astonishment. The little child, Gerald Beaufort inhaled until his face was scarlet and seemed about to pin his shoulders together in the back.

"The word is 'vile,'" said Felicia Bridewell irrepressibly in my left ear.

Only Sandra, Jeff and the chaplain seemed unamused. Jeff, in fact, glowered; or at least, I thought so at the time. He was so somber normally that it was difficult to tell when he was actually displeased. He peeled off his sweat shirt, rolled it into a tight ball, tossed it on the sand and marched deliberately into the lake. I should not have been surprised to see him waded out until his head was immersed, but he jackknifed suddenly and reappeared swimming with vicious strokes that seemed to reach for and clutch the far horizon.

I thought for a moment that Julia was going to follow him but with an effort that I thought I saw, at least, she turned her back to the lake and began rearranging the baskets and bottles which we had unloaded from the cars.

"Go on and swim," she said to all of us of assistance. "We won't eat for a long time yet, and I'd advise everyone to swim before they start eating. I don't want any casualties."

We had penetrated deep into the reservation for this party. Like the mossy old joke, we had turned in at the road marked OFFICIAL VEHICLES ONLY, passed the sign that read VISITORS NOT ALLOWED BEYOND THIS POINT and parked not to POSTIVELY NO ADMITTANCE. Adam had replied vaguely to my questions. The sign, he said, had something to do with summer maneuvers, which were concluded; but they also preserved the reservation from casual picnickers and resultant brush fires.

A hundred feet from the road was the lake, rimmed by a clean white beach as far as you could see in either direction, interrupted only, in the immediate foreground, by the wreck of an old coal barge that had been cast up to the water's edge by one of the storms that periodically convulse the Great Lakes.

Perceptibly Nervous

WE CLIMBED onto it when we had tired of swimming and sat, wet and cool and contented, swinging our legs over the shallow water that lapped at the weatherbeaten hull and sampling the contents of one of the big thermos bottles.

It was still daylight, though the sun had gone down behind us and a big moon had ballooned up out of the lake and was already high in the sky. A heavenly sense of well being came over me. Even the two strange little men beside me seemed expressly provided for my amusement.

I don't know why the chaplain had let himself get so near to me.

He addressed most of his remarks to Sandra, on his other side who, I gathered from their conversation, was responsible for his public appearance. I heard her ask him encouragingly if he wasn't glad she had insisted on his coming, and wasn't it fun?

"Most delightful," he agreed, managing what looked too painful to be classed as a smile. His face was still pretty awful, and his hands were encased in loose white cotton gloves because, I had heard him confide to someone, of the unpleasant ointment he had to use on them. The rest of his plump little figure was dressed in a khaki shirt and khaki slacks that were too long for him and had been turned up twice at the cuff. He had, of course, not been swimming. He looked rather like a wistful, strange child who had not been accepted by the gang. I thought, under the circumstances, that his response to Sandra's question was nothing short of heroic.

I turned my attention to the man on my other side. Sandra called him Ivan, and that was all of his name that I ever knew. Julia, it is true, had dubbed him Petrushki-Skivar, and I had heard her murmuring something to Gerald about the sons of the prophet being hairy and bold. She must have known his real name, but no one was sufficiently interested to inquire.

He was gazing now out across the lake, a long slender cigarette holder clamped like a pipe between his teeth and an overdone expression of dreamy detachment in his eyes.

"Swear not by the moon, th' inconstant moon," he declaimed suddenly in his quite phenomenal version of an English accent, and gave the yellow balloon that hung above the lake what amounted to a dirty look.

"I don't think swearing is very nice anyway, do you?" I asked him earnestly.

"I, ah, fancy Shakespeare meant it in another sense," he explained kindly. "Sandra tells me that you also write."

"You mean the Bard and I?" Well, yes and no. The comparison is hardly fair. You see, Shakespeare was all right in his time—

Warning Glance

IT TAKES two to carry on that kind of a conversation. I saw that I was making a lamentable impression and changed my tactics.

"And you—are you a Theopian?"

I thought the word well chosen and so, apparently, did he. He expanded.

He raised his voice a little and Sandra and the chaplain stopped talking to listen.

"All the world's a stage, and all the men and women in it merely players. They have their exits and their entrances; and one man in his time plays many parts. I have played, my parts as they came to me," he added modestly, but with an air of mystery which vaguely intrigued me. "I had my share, however, that my vocation is more vital than treading the boards."

Perhaps he wanted to be coaxed; perhaps he merely paused to heighten the effect; perhaps he caught a warning glance from Sandra. I shall never know. Certainly he did not go on. I had asked him to ask him the nature of this mysterious vocation when Sandra seized the conversation in both hands and made off with it.

"Did I tell you, Ivan, that I knew Chaplain Henry in Texas, when Mother and Father were alive? He—he was very kind."

He—he was broken and she looked volumes at the little chaplain. I thought he seemed acutely embarrassed.

"Yes," she went on more cheerfully, "when I learned that Chaplain Henry was here and would actually perform the marriage I could hardly believe my luck."

"Pleasure, I'm sure," muttered the little man awkwardly.

She smiled at him.

"I rushed right over to the hospital to make sure it was my Chaplain Henry, and you can imagine my shock when I saw him!" she smiled again, an affectionate smile. "You really must be careful, you know, not to get into any more poison oak. It's all around here."

Chaplain Henry looked over his shoulder. He seemed nervous.

"Not on the barge," I assured him.

"Juice of cursed hebenon," intoned Ivan and, flicking the butt from his cigarette holder, fell silent, gazing at the lake.

And the wedding? Sandra went on calmly, "is less than three weeks away. I can't have you looking like a—like a—"

She paused tactfully, but my professional enthusiasm forced me to supply the missing simile.

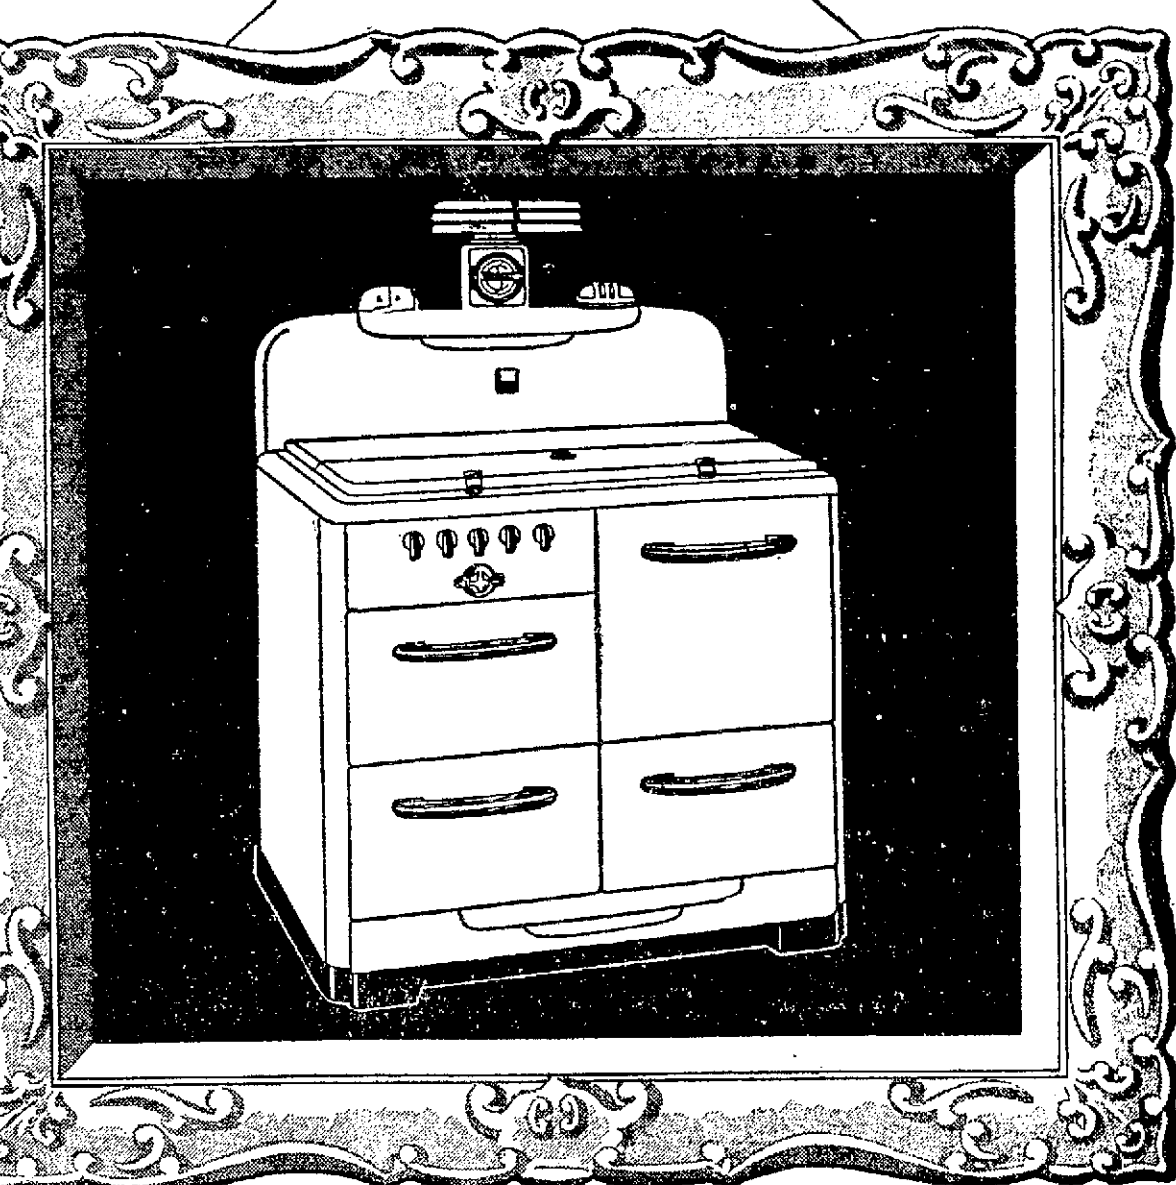

"Like a spoiled tomato." I finished, and laughed immoderately.

"Ha, ha," said Chaplain Henry. "That's very good. Very good indeed."

"No, very bad. In fact, rotten," I said, and applauded myself with another gale of mirth.

"So bad," said Adam behind me, "that I'm going to duck you

Federal entomologists have suggestions on avoiding insect pests that at times make outdoor life miserable. So far as mosquitoes, flies, and buffalo gnats are concerned, there is not much an individual can do other than to use fly sprays and bed nets. Oil of citronella affords some protection, say the entomologists, but it is not a sure repellent. As for wasps, the only advice is, "Stay away from them."

Perhaps the most dangerous insect that attacks man is the dog tick (wool tick) which occurs in the central and eastern states as well as in the West and sometimes causes Rocky Mountain spotted fever and also rabbit fever (tularemia). The Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine, Washington, D. C., has a free circular, No. 124, that tells how to avoid bites, and infection from

It is a common belief that many animals have phosphorescent eyes that glow in total darkness. Such is not the case, however, and science now knows that light can only be reflected by the eyes of certain animals, and this is due to a lustrous layer of the retina.

SPORT SCATTERINGS

If there's a shortage of muskies in Chautauqua Lake, it will be because the Warren colony at Long View has found where the big ones live and what they eat for breakfast. Although it was reported that only two muskies were caught on opening day, the Warren delegation caught a half dozen and has met with more than fair success since. Dave Bairdow leads with six; Herman Moll, of Russell, has caught four; John Broderick and W. H. Houghling are tied with three; John Moll, of Russell, and Bill Yeager have two apiece to their credit, and young Bill Yeager added another to make the collection 21 in number. Herman Moll's 34-pounder was the largest and Bill Yeager, Sr.'s 30½-pounder is next in size. Dave Bairdow comes the closest to the leaders with a muskie weighing 15 pounds.

One of the leading up-and-coming organizations in the borough at this writing is the Warren Archery Club, which boasts 35 enthusiastic members and some promising archers who will soon be heard of in state and national competition. The late Dr. William Haines was the foremost exponent of the sport locally, and to him must be given a lion's share of the credit for bringing archery to the forefront. Champion archer of the borough last year was Lewis Haines, the doctor's nephew, who took the title by a country mile, but this season he will get some real competition from other club members, including the Sasserons family. A meeting of the club, which is affiliated with the Lower Lakes Association, will be held next Sunday afternoon at the range near the Warren Planing Mill, at which time plans for holding the borough championship will be discussed.

Yesterday we took a gander at the plans for the proposed fence at Russell Field, bids for which will be opened at the meeting of the school board next Monday night. The architect's blue prints call for a 7-foot fence, either wire mesh or sheet metal, and a very attractive front on Pennsylvania avenue. The ticket windows, four in number, will be set back at some little distance from the walk, giving the waiting customers ample room and relieving the sidewalk congestion. Two wide flights of steps lead down, converging about half way, which will make egress somewhat less tedious. At the south end of the park there are two entrances planned, similar to those now used when snow fence and canvas are employed.

If wire mesh is used, canvas and trees will be used in conjunction and will provide about as much barrier as that at Wilder Field, where little or none is needed. Few people will walk or ride to Irvine and then peek through the fence. If sheet metal is the material, the school board will have provided a permanent barrier which will baffle peckers, of which there are scores, as well as fence-sealers. One thing is certain, no matter which is chosen, the board will cause to have planted trees along the west and east sides along the banks, to shut off the view from the corners of the field. Our guess is that by the time canvas and evergreens are added to the cost of the wire mesh, the cost of sheet metal will be about the same as the mesh and far more satisfactory for the purpose.

Dempsey and Tunney Farther Apart Than Ever

A Baseball Game Is Called Because of the Sun

Bill O'Brien Stages a Winter Show in Summer

BY HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Service Sports Editor

THE paths of Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney have grown even farther apart with the years. While the Old Man Mauler was busting up that wrestler in Atlanta the other night, Tunney and Mrs. Tunney were among social lights applauding Lily Pons in New York.

Max Baer considered Tony Galento and King Levinsky disgraces to the fight game. . . . flukes and freaks who had no business in the ring. Baer, of course, always was a credit to the beak busting dodge.

Vince Dimaggio finally appears to have found himself as a major leaguer. . . . with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Frank Frisch contends the older of the three brothers has blotted out the shoulder high, inside blind spot which caused him to establish a National League record for strikeouts.

He did it by holding his bat higher, and keeping his left arm down out of his line of vision.

BALL games have been called for many things and under strange circumstances, but it remained for an Interstate League umpire to call one because of the sun.

It was a twilight affair at Lancaster, Pa., and the arbiter agreed with the batter that the glaring rays made it difficult for both.

Next?

Sienn he hit better than .500 for six straight games without glasses, it will take an entire company of oculists to force Mel Ott into spectacles again.

You can't tell anybody in Washington the Yankees have fallen. The Senators have bagged only two games from the champions in 10.

BILL O'BRIEN, who has tried everything from tennis tours to midget automobile racing, is now promoting a summer ice-skating show in Chicago.

A pennant winner has to be a good road club, which strengthens Brooklyn's bid. The Dodgers captured 24 of their first 25 away from home.

Dolph Camilli prescribes the hit and run as a cure for batting slumps.

"It makes you swing," explains the Flatbush first baseman. "You watch the ball closer. You have to protect the runner."

MACK BELIEVES Youthful Netters On Way to Top Ranking IS BEST ROOKIE Via Different Routes

Philadelphia, July 9—(P)—Connie Mack, who ought to know, thinks he has the rookie pitcher of the year in Southpaw Vaughan.

The 21-year-old freshman, of Stevensville, Va., who jumped direct to the Athletics from the University of Richmond campus, hasn't won in three starts, but, Connie, looking ahead to 1941, is pleased nevertheless.

"It does you good to see a young fellow come up with his stuff once in a while," said Mack. "He's got the stuff and knows what to do. There isn't anyone who scares him."

That Vaughan doesn't scare easily is attested by his record. Two of his starts were against the world champion Yankees and the other against Cleveland and Bobby Feller. He worked 23 innings in this stretch giving up only 17 hits.

Vaughan made his major league debut in Cleveland June 16. He yielded only two hits in seven innings, before being lifted for a pinchhitter. He lost to the Yanks, 4 to 3, on nine hits, at the Yankee Stadium, June 30. Last Sunday the Yanks beat him again, 6 to 3, although Vaughan yielded only six hits in seven innings.

The youngster got a bonus of $8,000 for signing with the A's.

What does he think of big league batters? "They aren't so tough—they've just been lucky."

Softball Notes

SECOND HALF STARTS

The second half of the City Baseball League will begin tomorrow night at six o'clock when the Count's Restaurant outfit, first half champions, clash with their closest rivals, the Koch's Liberty Club team.

Thursday evening the Liberty Club will play North Warren at the latter's diamond near the cooperative plant. All players who wish transportation are asked to be at the Liberty Club at 5:30 o'clock.

SLUG FEST

In a Church loop slug fest at Beatty Field last night the Phalanx Fraternity nosed out the First Methodists 18 to 17. Shields and Ittel were the winning batters with Koebley and Maze working for the losers. Koebley got five hits, one of which was a homer. Other circuit clouts were recorded by Ittel, Brown and Marshall.

WEST SIDERS WIN

The West Side Juniors took the lead in the playground league by defeating the South side yesterday, 27 to 3. Features of the game were home runs by Vito Greto and Bucky O'Connor for the winners, and Russell Morley for the losers. The winning pitcher was Weldert and the losing pitcher McMullen.

KEYSTONES WIN

The Keystone, first half champions of the United Refinery circuit, took a postponed game from the first semester last night, defeating Flight 27-14.

The United League has developed into a great deal with large crowds attending each game and considerable interest in the fortunes of the various clubs is evident.

ELKS LEAGUE GAME

The Indians and Yankees will meet at the South Side diamond this evening in an Elks League softball game. All members of these teams are asked to report at six o'clock.

Zachary Taylor attained the presidency from a location farther south than any other President. He came from New Orleans.

New York, July 9—(P)—Two tall young fellows who would like to see their names opposite that "Y" in the national tennis ranking, and who stand better than good chances, are taking different roads toward the same objective.

The two are Frank Kovacs of Oakland, Calif., who already has won considerable national recognition, and Billy Gillespie, of Atlanta and the University of Miami.

Kovacs was ranked tenth nationally two years ago, but he suffered from a lame arm last season, played very little and didn't earn a national ranking.

He's following the turf court trail, playing this week in the Gold Racquet tourney at North Conway, N. H.

Last week the fans were comparing Kovacs to Tilden and Don Budge. He resembles them in at least one respect. He's tall and lanky and can hit the ball with devastating force, especially off the backhand.

The Californian's great faults are unsteadiness and lack of a well rounded game.

Gillespie is taking a more modest route by way of the clay courts. He got off in front in the New York state championships and was the first to reach the round of 16. Billy used to play for Scarborough school near here and usually lost to Marvin Kantrowitz of Dewitt Clinton High. Sunday his third round opponent was Kantrowitz, now of Lehigh, and Gillespie won in three tough sets.

Right now he seems headed for a match with top seeded Don McNeill of Oklahoma City, who didn't reach the tourney until yesterday and then caught up by means of a convenient default and a couple of easy victories. Billy probably will lose that match, but he has a chance to show how good he is.

Ludlow

Ludlow, July 5—W. F. Wike was pleasantly surprised at his home last Saturday evening when a number of his friends from Kane came to help him celebrate his birthday anniversary. The evening was spent socially, after which Mrs. Wike served delicious refreshments. Mr. Wike received some very pretty gifts. A miscellaneous shower was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Howanac Wednesday in honor of their daughter Anna who will be married Saturday. The evening was pleasantly spent, after which a lunch was enjoyed. The honor guest received many gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Zastawney and family spent Saturday in Warren and visiting relatives in Sherrfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gamala are the parents of a baby daughter born June 22nd. Both mother and baby daughter Patricia Ann are fine.

GOLFING TIPS

BY HAROLD SMITH
Professional at Coneywango Valley C. C.

PLAYING THE SHORT IRONS

These irons with their shorter shafts and deeper blades should be even easier to play than those favorite mashies, and they will be too if we don't tighten up and try to give the ball just that right amount of power and steer them for the pin.

Of course I am speaking of the full shot with the No. 7 or 8 iron and not the run up or chip shot, and more of these shots are ruined by hurried shots than from any other cause. So play them boldly and depend more on the left to take care of distance, but don't let those lefts induce you to scoop for this shot is more decidedly a downwardly hit shot than even the mashies were, and always play them right on the pin and your downwardly struck ball won't roll away.

To correctly play this shot place your feet as your Pro has advised, remember about the square or open stance and by all means apply it here, for your arms must have a clear path to go down and through. Be sure your feet are comfortably close together so that your weight is evenly distributed on both feet.

The ball should be well back towards the right foot; align the ball carefully on the pin and with a straight left arm start the club head back. Allow the left knee to bend slightly, but do not dip it or throw the preponderance of weight on the right leg, for this is a hand and arm shot and very little turn or pivot is needed. Keep the right elbow well into the body and when the backward swing starts to pull the elbow out start cocking the wrists; your hands on the short iron shot do not need to go above the shoulder.

So remembering to hit down and through and to finish the shot by letting the club head go through, you may start your downward stroke by starting to brace the left leg and to bring the right elbow into the body—the wrists uncock—you lash into the ball.

Right here's where many otherwise perfectly hit approach shots go wrong—so read this carefully! No one has ever invented a self returning golf ball so there's just no percentage in your looking up to see how close you are. Just keep those shoulders and head right down where they were until the momentum of the follow through pulls them up, and don't try to stop that club head either, let it fly on through and you'll do all right.

home Sunday after spending two weeks with friends at Bradford.

Miss Helen Hart of Tionesta is visiting here at the home of her uncle and aunt Mr. and Mrs. Bud Carl.

Robert Nelson is visiting relatives at Olean, N. Y., for a time. Mrs. Bud Carl and children spent last week with home folks at Tionesta.

Mrs. G. A. Gunnerson of Kane and Mrs. Emma Peterson of Buffalo, N. Y., spent Tuesday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. Walfrid Johnson.

Hungarians Go to Berlin

For a Conference

ed today that "Rumania does not recognize any justification for eventual Hungarian territorial demands and is resolved not to accept them."

"The statement was made as Hungarian Premier Count Pal Teleky and Foreign Minister Count Istvan Csaky enroute from Budapest for Germany, to discuss Hungary's claims for return to her of the Rumanian province of Transylvania with the German and Italian foreign ministers, Joachim von Ribbentrop and Count Galeazzo Ciano, and possibly with Adolf Hitler.

Berlin, July 9.-P.-Informed German sources said today that some southern German city probably would be the scene of a meeting shortly of the foreign ministers of Hungary, Germany and Italy, with Adolf Hitler also possibly attending.

In official German quarters it was said that neither German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop nor the visiting Italian foreign minister, Count Galeazzo Ciano, was in Berlin today.

Nation Looms on Threshold of Dictatorship

Pettain's government is expected to emerge with greater power than any free government of Republican France ever had—authority to frame its own laws and constitution and then create its own assembly to ratify them.

The measure, however, declared that the new constitution of German-mastered France "must guarantee the rights of labor, family and country."

The identity of the three deputies who cast opposition ballots was not ascertained immediately. But the promiscuous press noted that for years "grand old man" of the Senate, abstained from participation at any meetings on the constitution although he was in Vichy.

The senate juridical committee was announced officially to have approved unanimously a draft of the bill to be submitted to the national assembly for a new constitution.

Both steps by the Chamber—authorization to convene the assembly and the resolution to entrust Pettain's cabinet with drafting the constitution—were completed within an hour.

Intensive Sea Raids Planned by Nazi Leaders

lifelines of the British Empire is a prelude to a direct attack upon England itself remained a matter of conjecture.

The German press centered attention on reports from the United States that President Roosevelt had suggested Europe and Asia adopt principles of the Monroe Doctrine in solving problems of their respective spheres.

Editorial comment in Berlin generally was favorable. Germans said the president's proposals were not completely understood, but the general impression prevailed that the United States is giving more thought to "the negative aspects" of its Monroe Doctrine—meaning that in return for keeping out of the western hemisphere, European powers might expect assurance that the United States would keep out of Europe's affairs.

Foreign Minister Hachiro Ariga told British Ambassador Sir Robert Craigie the British reply was unsatisfactory and urged him to advise London to reconsider.

The Japanese press was unanimous in declaring that "an understanding" with the United States and Soviet Russia preceded the British reply and newspapers repeated previous charges that the United States fleet is acting as a

Pettain is expected to assume the title of "chief of state" in a virtual dictatorship—another link in the Nazi-Fascist "chain store" system of European governments under the influence or direct mastery of Hitler's Germany.

Already enrolled in this category, to a greater or lesser extent, are most of the nations which have fallen before the Nazi war machine as well as others now striving to preserve their existence by rallying to the Nazi-Fascist standard—such as Rumania and, to a lesser degree, Sweden.

Rumania's fate under pressure of Hungarian demands for the return of the Rumanian province of Transylvania, which belonged to the old Austro-Hungarian empire before the World War, seemed near a settlement.

The British struggle to destroy the threat of French naval power dominated the European conflict again while from the Orient came grim rumblings of a possible break between Britain and Japan.

Nazis in Berlin said a new campaign by air and sea had been launched against British shipping. German air raiders stabbed at Britain all day Monday and on into this morning. The British said eight Nazi and three British planes were destroyed in the fighting.

German radio stations at Berlin, Stuttgart, Cologne, Bremen, Hamburg and Frankfurt shut down early today, indicating British raiders were in the vicinity.

Japan seethed indignantly over Britain's refusal to close the Burma road to Nationalist China and sources close to the government said a Japanese attack on Hong-kong was a possibility unless the British reconsidered.

Mexico Fears More Trouble

a spokesman said the count might be announced late today.

The opposition, meanwhile, raised a clamor over alleged violations of regularities, and General Almazan said that should he obtain any evidence of fraud he would deem it "an inescapable obligation to take all necessary means to make the will of the people as expressed in the election respected."

Latest estimates on the number killed and wounded Sunday were based on official statements by the Department of Interior and the Department of National Defense.

Chicago Starts Getting Ready For Convention

will never seek nor accept the nomination.

"We have assumed from the beginning that Mr. Roosevelt will not accept the nomination and will not be a candidate for a third term," he said.

Headquarters for Senator Wheeler were opened by J. Burke Clements of Helena, Mont. He said the senator's candidacy would be pushed aggressively. Senator Wheeler has announced that his name would go before the convention regardless of the president's action.

Telephone Company is Upheld in Appeal Involving Its Service type of business.

The decision was given in the complaint of Abraham Plotnick of Philadelphia, who was identified as the publisher of a "scratch sheet" containing information about horse races. He appealed to the commission after the company refused to install telephone service.

The commission said the telephone company "was justified in concluding that from the nature of Plotnick's business, the telephone facilities would be used, or might be used in the furtherance of horse race betting which is contrary to law."

Plotnick contended that his business is not illegal.

IS DOING WELL

According to reports from the hospital, Glenn Honhart, of R. D. 3, Warren, is getting along as well as can be expected. He suffered an arm injury while working at the G. G. Green plant here last Saturday.

NOT OBSOLETE

Observation balloons still are the best method of reporting the enemy's position, because they use direct telephone lines to the battery. Planes must use radios and it is easier for the enemy to "jam" their messages.

Magnets can be made strong enough to lift and carry several tons.

Hamilton Executive Director

itor of Fortune Magazine, to serve as Willkie's personal representative who will work with Martin, and the assignment of Oren Root, Jr., young New York lawyer, to organization work among independent Willkie clubs.

Walter S. Hallahan, of West Virginia, announced the subcommittee's action in approving the appointment of Martin was unanimous. He also praised Willkie's "cooperation" in sitting with the group.

Hallahan announced that Sinclair Weeks of Massachusetts had been chosen chairman of the executive committee of the national committee, and the following had been named vice chairman of the national committee: Samuel C. Pryor, Connecticut; Hallahan, West Virginia; Mrs. Grace B. Reynolds, Ind.; and Mrs. Elsie Fitzsimmons, Rhode Island.

Reelected were C. O. Goodspeed, Illinois, as treasurer; Harold Mason, Vermont, secretary; and Henry P. Fletcher, Rhode Island, general counsel.

Mrs. Worthington Scranton, of Scranton, Pa., was named to membership on the executive committee.

Both Davenport and Root were associated in those capacities during his campaign for the Republican nomination.

Campaign headquarters, Willkie announced, will be established in either Chicago or New York. He added that an effort would be made to have the headquarters "convenient" to Martin, thus indicating that New York was the preferred city.

This would be undertaken, he explained, through the already started organization of Willkie-for-president clubs.

In defining Hamilton's new position, Willkie said that he would continue to be compensated with a salary of $25,000 a year and that his job would be "assisting Mr. Martin."

Martin, he said, "is the campaign manager in charge of the campaign."

Chapter 13 The Barge

YESTERDAY: Sandra brings a person named Adam to a beach party. He looks like a actor but hints mysteriously that his vocation is a more vital one.

ADAM put his hands under my arms and, lifting me quite easily—I am always surprised at the strength in Adam's slender body—slung me over his shoulder like a sack of meal.

I stopped struggling when he began to stalk along the narrow rim of the barge for, inverted as I was, I could see too clearly the thirty-foot drop on either side.

"Don't let go," I prayed, with what breath was left in my diaphragm. "There's unpleasant dark water in the hold of the ship."

"Rain water," he responded practically. "Probably mosquitoes down there. Must send out some kerosene before the next beach party." He eased me to my feet. "I could carry you down the ladder," he boasted, "but you might not like it."

"I don't like it anyway," I confessed. "But I prefer to do it myself."

Adam says that his ninety-ninth great-grandmother grew disgusted with the aquatic life one day when her old man rose to the bait for the last time. So, having a pioneering spirit, she marshaled her children and fopped ashore to try life on dry land. But he thinks it was a mistake. Once a fish, always a fish, he says, and darts around in the water in a most improbable fashion, usually with his head and shoulders above the surface and his arms and legs all over the place. Once when he swam up behind me, and, wrapping them around me, bore me down, I thought an octopus had me.

I can swim, but I have yet to learn to breathe under water. He loved me to shore, finally, half-drowned, and made me race him down the beach, almost but not quite, letting me win. As I may have said, Adam is a man of principle.

Somewhat spent, I found a big piece of driftwood and sat upon it. He stood for a moment looking down at me, an odd little grin on his face.

"You're all right," he said and I thought he meant it for approval.

He sat down beside me then and began patiently to scoop and pour the dry, reluctant sand into his palms and valleys.

"It's too dry. It won't stay," I told him, after I had watched him idly for a few minutes.

"I know. You can't shape it. It's like this business of Immerman."

"Have you learned anything new?"

"Not a thing. He went back to barracks after you saw him at the Post Exchange, put on civilian clothes and said he was going to walk to the village. But no one admits having seen him there. We've asked at bars, pool halls, all the soldier hangouts. He had a girl who works at the local diner, but she says she hasn't seen him for two or three weeks. And she says he never gave her an invitation or anything else. I saw him myself, and I believe her."

"Felicia says the man jumped on her running board at the last red light in the village."

"I know. I asked her if it could have been Immerman. She says she never thought of it at the time, but admits she might not have recognized him with a mask on. She estimates the time at ten o'clock or later. It's not quite four miles to the village. He could have walked it in an hour, if he didn't pick up a ride. An hour and a half at the outside. So where was he between, say four-thirty and ten o'clock?"

Dollar Bills

"GETTING the money?" I suggested, with what I felt to be an inspiration. And then I remembered something. "What did you mean when you said Connel O'Connor might be interested in that box of money?"

Adam gave a deep breath and looked at me quently for a moment.

"He was," he said, and went back to scooping sand.

"Any particular reason? Unless it's a state secret. Oh, that's very good. State secret—state police. Get it?"

"Not it," Adam said discouragingly. "A very particular reason, as it happens. He's looking for a little matter of fifty thousand dollars in twenty-dollar bills—twenty-five hundred of them, if your arithmetic agrees with mine. It's no secret. You read about it in the Chicago papers in June. Remember the Rapsch child?"

"You mean—the little girl who was kidnapped for a week and brought back unhurt? Yes, I remember. And the fifty thousand is ransom money? Oh, Adam, do you mean that the man in the burning car was the kidnaper?"

"I'm afraid not. It would be nice to know the world was rid of him."

"But how can you know it isn't the right money? It was all burned up!" An exciting thought—to have seen fifty thousand dollars in ashes—probably the only form in which I would ever see it. "And maybe Immerman was the kidnaper, even if he did look like a banian cock!"

Adam said, "You're not writing this, you know. You'll have to give the facts a chance."

"I'm trying to," I assured him. "If you'll only stop being so disgustingly important and mysterious and let out a few..."

He laughed, in a satisfied way, and put out a hand toward me in an unfinished gesture that had grown familiar and puzzling to me—a reaching and withdrawing at almost the same instant.

He buried the hand and brought it up slowly, carefully, watching the sand run off in innumerable fine streams until only a few grains remained ridged along the back of each long, blunt finger.

"There are two good reasons why we know it was not the ransom money, and why we know the kidnaper was not Immerman. Reasons known only to Corporal Connel and me—and Colonel Pennington, of course. I'll tell you because I know you can keep your mouth shut, and because you have helped me before."

"Thank you. Now that we've got that straight..."

"As you may not know, the fingerprints of every officer and enlisted man in the combined services are recorded in Washington. That was a wartime innovation and has been in effect ever since. A federal investigator managed to get the fingerprints of the Rapsch kidnaper, and those prints are not on file. Therefore the kidnaper is not Immerman."

As for the money—that was a neat bit of work on Corporal O'Connor's part. He practically built a box around those ashes before he moved them from the car. He handled them with such care, and that had been so well packed in that it was possible, back at State Police Headquarters, to determine the denominations of some of the bills and make photographs of their charred remains."

Wizard

"THEY weren't counterfeit?" "Must I remind you again," he demanded good-naturedly, "that you are not writing this? They were not counterfeit. They were good old United States currency. But in so far as it was possible to determine, there were no twenties among them. There were upwards of two thousand bills; and the detective bureau, after hours of painstaking labor, were able to discover nothing but ones among them."

"One-dollar bills. Probably two thousand of them, all packed in a pasteboard box and burned almost, but not quite, beyond recognition."

"Why, the man must have been a miser!"

He looked at me kindly. "Not a miser, a wizard. If you mean Immerman, I would take several years to put away even a thousand one-dollar bills on a soldier's twenty-one dollars a month. And Immerman was serving his first enlistment."

I frowned impatiently. "He couldn't have saved it out of his pay, could he? He inherited it, or stole it?"

"All in one-dollar bills?" "Or earned it in his spare time."

"Two afternoons a week for two years?"

"All right—what do you think?" "I don't think anything except that he's a wizard. And we know so little—we don't even know that the man in the car was Immerman. He was too badly burned to fingerprint him, and the man who would know about his teeth, if it was Immerman, is beyond reach for the time being. I mean the post dental surgeon. He has a month's leave with permission to visit foreign countries and is somewhere in Canada on a motor trip. We could probably get hold of him and bring him back, but it seems a shame to do it—the evidence will wait; and in the meantime we may get a line on Immerman. A soldier who knew him says he had been acting queerly, as if he was scared of something. There's always the possibility that he was in personal difficulties and has simply gone over the hill."

"What did the kidnaper look like?"

"No idea. No one saw him, and his fingerprints are in the clut, which seems to indicate that he was a lucky beginner. Or, lucky, if you count the angels. No old hand would have left them—oh, oh. You're contemplating me with your low pangs."

"Not bad for a beginner," I told him generously. "I won't charge you anything for the first lesson."

"What will you charge not to give me any more?"

"That's cheap."

A faint smile from the direction of the barge was succeeded by a clangor that sounded like someone beating out coffee, coffee, without any cream on it.

Summer Threatens Heat Prostration

BY PAUL BRAUNSCHWEIGER

Summer descends upon the average individual almost without warning, for who pays much attention to the calendar?

The habits of winter months must change with rising temperatures. Less rush and confusion, a more moderate diet, cool clothing, protection from intolerable sun rays all enter into the business of keeping cool and healthy.

Frost prostration can come without warning and leave lasting effects. It threatens life itself. Avoid such danger by sensible living, consult your physician at the least threat to health, purchase all medication from a skilled druggist whose name is a guarantee of purity and scientific knowledge.

Letters to the Editor

Warren, Pa., July 8, 1940.
Editor, Warren Times-Mirror, Warren, Pennsylvania.

Herewith is a letter to the New York Herald Tribune, by E. J. Fencese, dated Philadelphia, Pa. July 3, 1940. It seems that this letter contains an excellent suggestion to your readers.

Very truly yours,
E. D. WETMORE.

To the New York Herald Tribune: I beg the hospitality of your columns to express the belief that the United States should terminate diplomatic relations with Germany without delay.

I have come to the conclusion that the interests of this country will be best served by this action, for several reasons—chief among which are:

1. It will rally the country as nothing else can.
2. It will give great encouragement to England, our natural ally and the last bulwark of honor and decency across the sea.

3. It will put us in a much stronger bargaining position as regards Italy and Japan.

4. It will strengthen our hold over Spanish America in protecting those countries from Nazi craft and guile.

5. It will enable us to deal much more effectively with the fifth column in this country.

In connection with the last I would point out that the German diplomatic and consular officials in the United States are the backbone of our fifth column. Masquerading under diplomatic privilege, their

ANNUAL OUTING FOR SCOUTERS NEXT SATURDAY

Warren county Scouters and friends are making preparation for the annual Scouters' outing which will be held on Saturday and Sunday of this week at Camp Olmsted. The Scouters' outing is an annual weekend preceding the opening of Camp Olmsted where Scouters and their friends enjoy the facilities of the camp. Muesball, aquatics, boating, canoeing, fishing and swimming are on the program for those who wish it, but participation in these activities is purely optional, according to O. C. Trill, chairman of the affair.

The Saturday evening program will be held in the camp mess-hall and the Sunday morning worship service will be in charge of Earle Fohn. All men will be quartered in sleeping cabins of their own choice. Those who are attending are advised that the nights at Camp Olmsted are rather cool and at least four blankets will be essential.

There is no charge for the use of the camp facilities, except for the cost of the three meals which will be served, which will amount to a total of one dollar. Reservations for the outing must be made no later than Thursday at five o'clock at Scout headquarters.

EARLY VOTING RESTRICTIONS
In the early days of the United States, the electoral college had a free hand in choosing the President, and voting was restricted by property and other qualifications.

Notice is hereby given that Ellen Ryan, Administratrix of the Estate of Ellen Freeman will present her petition for discharge to the Orphans' Court of Warren County, Penna., on Wednesday, August 14th, at ten o'clock a. m. at which time all persons in interest may be heard.

INSULIN TOPIC OF ADDRESS BY SPEAKER HERE

At the July meeting of the members of the Warren County Medical Society, held at the Conewago Club yesterday afternoon, Dr. Joseph N. Barack, of the University of Pittsburgh Medical School spoke on the recent developments concerning diet for diabetic patients.

He noted the present-day use of the insulin treatment and the resultant normal diet for sufferers in former years starches and sugars were cut down and fats increased, but with insulin the patient is allowed as much carbohydrate as he will tolerate.

The proper use of insulin was described in detail, the speaker stating that 40 per cent of the diabetic patients do not need insulin and that the other 60 per cent should have just enough to maintain a normal sugar tolerance on a maintenance diet.

Twenty-five members and four guests were present. Hosts were Drs. E. G. Hamilton, I. G. Hyer, Robert H. Israel and Arnold Kippen.

George Eastman introduced the first portable camera in America in 1888. The device, which took a circular picture, weighed 22
